

2025 SPONSORSHIP PROSPECTUS

THE ALGAE BIOMASS SUMMIT

The Algae Biomass Summit (ABS) is hosted by the Algae Biomass Organization (ABO), a non-profit trade association and unified voice of the algae industry. ABO is the leading U.S. algae biomass association and has had the longest standing algae-focused conference in the world. Working on behalf of all sectors, the ABO advocates for algae-advancing policy and funding, serves as a hub for innovation and networking, and drives demand for “made with algae” products and services.

For almost 20 years, the ABS has united commercial leaders, entrepreneurs, scientists, policymakers, investors, and young innovators who share the same passion to drive innovation forward and build the algae and seaweed economy.

This Year's Algae Biomass Summit will take place in Tempe, Arizona on the Arizona State University campus' Memorial Union on October 19-21, 2025. The agenda will be focused on delivering fresh perspectives, commercial breakthroughs and exciting research that are propelling algae & seaweed products and services as vital solutions to realize a low carbon and sustainable world.

This event brings together real-world buyers in the various algae industries: food and feed, carbon capture, sustainability, regenerative agriculture, wastewater, energy, education and academics, climate and more. We bring together decision makers and thought leaders from around the world whose focus is algae and seaweed.
